

Course design

Curriculum map

Use the following diagram to map the alignment of your assessment and teaching. You’re aiming to define concise learning outcomes for the course, from which assessment strategies can be identified to allow students to demonstrate attainment. From this, structured teaching and learning activities are created that prepare students to succeed in their study. This alignment between learning outcomes, assessment and teaching and learning can then influence how you structure a course.

Learning outcomes	Summative assessment	Formative assessment	Teaching and learning activities	Module structure